Skating through the ice is a favorite pastime at North Pond with fair catches of pickerel. Ice was about six inches thick last week.

Workmen are used in removing snow banks between the sidewalks and road on Main Street. This gives room for parking next the curb and easy access to the stores. The snow is dumped on vacant lots behind the buildings and along Pennesseewassee stream.

Miss Irene Nevers is home from the Farmington Normal School for the holidays.

The Christmas trade began last Saturday, a week ago and still continues. Norway merchants wear smiling faces.

Elmer Morrill and Frank Buck are scoring pulpwood for George Westleigh on the Tubbs lot, which Mr. Westleigh recently purchased of James Tubbs.

Christmas trees seem to be the attraction just now, as nearly every car has one or two aboard and men, women and children are busy gathering them from all directions. The Christmas spirit is surely among us now and thoughts turn to the reliable old farms which furnish the trees to make merry Christmas in the homes.

The many friends of Frank E. Frost will be interested to know that he is some better in many ways, but suffers much pain from the injury he received last summer when he fell from a load of hay.

Virgil Herrick has finished his job of cord wood and is sawing pine logs.

Willard Berry is trucking pine to South Paris from his wood lot which he recently bought of George Westleigh.

Mrs. Ellen Hammond has returned from her visit with her son and is stopping with her daughter, Mrs. Herman Lewis, on Danforth Street.

Norway—Bridgton State Highway

Informal Hearing Held Thursday at the Norway Grange Hall

An informal hearing was held at Grange Hall, Thursday, the 13th, before the State Highway Commissioners. There was a large attendance of those interested in having a State Highway connecting Western Oxford County with the county seat at South Paris.

L. M. Carroll of Norway was president of the meeting and called the speakers who told what route they favored and gave the reasons. Joe Fitts of Harrison, with a large delegation, favored the direct route to his town, it being the shortest, while those from Waterford favored the route through that town, which would serve a larger number of people, even if it was a longer distance.

There were speakers from Brownfield, Hiram, Denmark, Naples, Bridgton, Otisfield, Lovell, Fryeburg, Stoneham—all expressed the desire to have this connecting link of highway and a willingness to allow the Commissioner to lay out the route either through Waterford or over Hall Hill in Harrison as the Commissioners thought best.

Chairman Clyde H. Smith made a nice talk regarding roads and the need of connecting links and the necessity of the department in having more money. He also promised, in behalf of the board, that the Norway-Bridgton route would be laid out sometime next spring and built when funds were furnished.

WHY NOT MORE SAND?

At five minutes of eleven o'clock on Tuesday morning the sanding crew started down Main Street, making the slippery sidewalks easier for travel, after an afternoon, a night and a forenoon of icy walking.

At South Paris the sidewalks received a good coating of sand. Monday afternoon—the streets were in good order for Monday night shopping, ready for those out early Tuesday morning and did good service Tuesday forenoon.

Why not more sand on Norway Streets when absolutely needed?

We note other places as well as Norway want "sanded sidewalks" at the time when they are needed. People are falling and receiving injuries that might be avoided. Sidewalks are a part of the highway made to walk on and should be made safe, not once or twice during the winter but at all times when necessary.

Burglar at Farmers' Union

Escaped in Shower of Lead

Two shots fired through a window and two more sent after a fleeing burglar, stopped the looting but failed to get the man, early Tuesday evening.

The excitement was staged at the Farmers' Union grain store when Walter Purington, watchman at the W. F. Tubbs' snowshoe factory near by, observed an object moving towards the cash register under a light in the grain store office.

Peering through the window he observed someone, in the act of removing money from the draw. Commanding the intruder to stop, the watchman fired twice through the window, the bullets entering the ceiling a few feet above the till. Instantly the burglar made a hasty exit through the rear window. The watchman ran to that end of the building and sent two more bullets after the fleeing form.

Officer Hodgman of Lewiston arrived with his police dog about 11 o'clock. The trail was easily picked up, and led to the Beal Street sidewalk, then to a certain house which appeared to be the end. The dog was taken back to the store for other clues, but went back over the same track.

No arrests have been made but an investigation is in progress as a good description of the burglar was secured by the watchman.

This is the fourth break at the Farmers' Union in the past few months, but no direct evidence has ever been secured to warrant arrests.

DOG TEAM TAKES START

Arrangements have been completed for the start of America's first international dog team mail, which left Lewiston, Me., Thursday on a 600-mile trek to Montreal and return.

Pulsifer said the dogs were in splendid condition, that the trappings and gear were in order, and that the start would take place according to schedule.

The ceremonies marking the official start will be recorded in talking-pictures. Plans have been made with Hollis Young and James M. Lillis, of the Fox Studios in New York, to make a movietone record, and all necessary equipment is now in Lewiston, brought by truck from New York, especially for this occasion. Mr. Young will be in Minot, Thursday, and will take "talkies" of preliminary scenes of the trek, such as feeding, harnessing, and training the dogs. He stated that this was the first time that "talkies" had been made of any dog team, and as the Eskimo dogs do not bark like ordinary dogs, but send up a howl in the manner of wolves, he expects to get some interesting scenes.

He also stated that movietone pictures would be made of the ceremonies at City Hall steps at 12.30 Thursday, when Governor Brewster will fire a pistol marking the official beginning of the trek; also of the presentation of flags by A. D. Provencher, president of the snowshoe clubs; and of the parade in which more than five hundred persons in uniform will march, making an escort for the team and drivers, who will be the special messengers of the American Snowshoe Union. A pair of snow shoes will also be presented by Elmer Aldrich of the W. F. Tubbs Co., snowshoe manufacturers of Norway.

Christmas Holiday Thoughts

The payment of an inflated price because someone else is doing so, is not good business—it is plain foolishness.

Before we can intelligently proceed, we must first be correctly informed. If we begin with it may be we will probably end with it might have been.

Disasters are reported every day. And always for the same season—neglect of duty.

ADVERTISER PRINTED FRIDAY

Next week the Norway Advertiser will be printed one day later than usual because of Christmas.

People in Norway Village and South Paris will receive their Advertiser Friday afternoon, December 28, instead of on Thursday afternoon.

Something To Think About

What is the Cause and Where the Remedy?

Our village seems to be passing through a "crime wave" just at present. Since early fall there have been numerous offences, breaks and small articles and money have been stolen. Some of these offenders have been caught, given a talking to, the goods returned and the offenders freed. In some instances merchants are obliged to keep a watchful eye about the store when suspected parties are present to prevent shoplifting.

In all the incidents the parties on whom these offences have been committed have been lenient, with the hope that the offenders might see the error of their ways and turn over a new leaf, after being caught and cease from repetition of the offence. This has seemed the best method to pursue. The question arises, is it the best method, do the offenders appreciate the leniency and desist, or do they continue?

In most of these cases referred to, there seems to be a growing tendency toward that which they have been doing, namely, stealing. Must the reform school be resorted to, to clean up our local disturbance?

In cases of this kind parents beg unmercifully to keep their's and their children's names out of court and out of the papers concerning these matters. Is there no way for parents to teach their children right and wrong, and keep them from such predicaments? There always has been a way by those who took the time and the pains to instill those virtues into the minds of their children—but it began when the child was small.

Another incident along this line has come to light. Two letters were lost, in the street, about two weeks ago—each contained $2.00 checks. One letter was addressed to a Norway party, the other to New York parties for a magazine subscription. A Norway boy found the letters and instead of carrying them to the postoffice to mail, or returning them to the sender, he opened them and took the checks out.

The Norway one was carried to the home of the party the check was made payable to and the lady of the house, feeling the boy's honesty should be rewarded, gave him $1.00 for returning the check, (not knowing it had been selected from an envlope with the other important papers which were evidently destroyed.)

The New York check was returned, Wednesday, to the party drawing it, after being given away by the finder who was the same party who found the other check. On the reverse side of the New York check, in the place for endorsement poorly written, in pencil, appeared the name of the publishing company. Does that not come pretty near to forgery?

It was plain to see what this boy's intentions were in each case—and is not along the lines of honesty.

If these instincts grow what will be the future for these boys? Think it over.

LITTLE STOCKINGS IN A ROW

By the glowing Christmas fireside,
In the vanished years ago,
I was filling little stockings,
As they hung there in a row.

One was stored with boyish treasures,
From the next one peeped a doll,
And the third sock, oh so tiny,
Was the dearest one of all!

Now beside the Christmas fireside,
With the embers burning low,
Comes today that sweetest picture
Of the stockings in a row.

Happy mothers with your children,
Count each precious moment gold,
While the little ones are sheltered
Safe from harm within the fold.

Thankful be—and prize the blessing
Of the joyous Christmas glow,
When you fill with loving pleasure
Little stockings in a row.

SUSIE'S BAND RETURNS

Susie's Kitchen Kabinet Band will play a return engagement at the American Legion Hall, Norway, Thursday evening, December 20, with the opening overture at eight o'clock.

Some time ago the band appeared to crowded houses and went across with flying colors in a snappy variety program of the grave and gay. There were strains from the strainer and sweet peals from the peeler, in fact music was produced on 57 varieties of kitchen articles, plus odds and ends usually found in any well regulated household.

The band numbers twenty-five performers in brilliant costumes. Every performer is a lady and every lady an artist for noise and execution.

The bills say "You never sausage a show" and that is no joke as the "funnel" will last more than an hour, with egg beater solos, potato masher duets and chopping bowl quartets. It is some show. Undoubtedly a crowded house will honor the greatest band for all time.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT COUPLE PARTY

Mrs. Helena Nelson entertained a "couple party," Friday evening, for supper, bridge and a shower. Supper was served at the card tables which were lighted with red candles. The decorations about the rooms were in the Christmas colors and Christmas bells were conspicuous.

After supper was over, the tables were filled for bridge, and during the evening Dr. Nelson announced the arrival of Santa Claus and a Christmas tree on the dining table was found to be loaded with packages. Each one present received a gift, but when Miss Winona Flanders' name was called, she received a shower of packages and the coverings removed revealed many beautiful gifts. In this way her engagement was announced to Leroy Fletcher, and a shower of congratulations followed. Miss Flanders was taken wholly by surprise.

In the gathering were the honor guest, Miss Flanders, and Leroy Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Noble, Mr. and Mrs. David Klain, Mr. and Mrs. Scott L. Kilborn, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer D. Packard, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs Clayton Heath, Mr and Mrs. Perley C. May, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Luce and the host and hostess.

BOSEBUCK CAMP NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Flint of Bethel and Bosebuck Camps, Magalloway, were in town, last week. They were shopping and calling on friends.

Mr. Flint reports building more camps the past season to accommodate increasing businss up river. The season just closed was good, especially so the hunting. Everybody seems to have got a deer up that way.

The river has been well stocked with small trout. All told, some 14,000 fingerlings have been put in it. Some come from Cold Spring Hatchery of W. H. Rowe of West Buxton, the others from the State Hatchery of Auburn, Me. and from the York Pond Hatchery of West Milan, N. H.

Some $365.00 for stocking purposes was contributed by the guests of Bosebuck Camps. The Farmacheenee Club helped as did others.

The Universalist supper, Thursday, at 6.30 p. m. attracted a patronage of 250 and more and fully that number remained for the entertainment. The curtain raiser presented Miss Ruth Flanders, violinist, and Miss Ada Reed, pianist, in a number of selections. Familiar airs were played and the young people led by Rev. Phiny A. Allen, joined in a regular community sing, before the play and between the acts. A strong cast made a hit in the comedy drama, "The Prince of Liars" which was a collection of laughs and ridiculous situations. The supper and program was part of the annual fair that opened with a Christmas Sale on Wednesday.

The Twin Town Luncheon Club was entertained, Friday, by Mrs. Hugh Pendexter. Lunch was served at Beals' Tavern at one o'clock and the remainder of the afternoon was passed at the Pendexter home with four tables at bridge.

Christmas mail is heavy. Not far from 200 sacks were handled at the postoffice Wednesday and the rush is not over yet.

THE GOSSIPS

A group of silver birches
On a knoll against the sky,
Tossed their tousled heads and nodded
At the South Wind passing by.

They teased the idle fellow
With many a roguish glance,
Until he stopped politely
And invited them to dance.

They dipped and swayed and curtseyed—
It was a pretty sight—
They stepped a lively measure
To the left and to the right.

Their white silk ankles twinkled
And their skirts flared recklessly;
I stopped to watch the frolic,
And admire the graceful three.

But the sober Madam Spruces
And the Misses Fir trees tall,
Were whispering disapprovingly
Across the pasture wall.

Their dark brocaded skirts were stiff
And almost touched the ground,
And I'm sure they never noticed
When the South Wind came around.

They said the Birches were too bold,
Their skirts too scant and short;
And they did not think their callers
Were at all the proper sort.

All the warmth of summer vanished
And I felt the winter's chill,
As I listened to the gossip
Of the Spruces on the hill.

I turned to watch the dancers
But all the charm had gone,
And so I said, "Good afternoon,"
And slowly wandered on.

Material such as dry leaves, weeds, sweepings from the house and barn, coffee grounds, banana peelings, soot, and wood ashes is not necessarily waste matter. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, these things all have some fertilizer value and can be utilized by the small farmer or suburbanite. The materials can be applied direct to the soil or composted with manure before using.

Man's Food Supply for Seventy Years of Life

If a man of seventy years were starving it would probably be of little comfort to him to reflect that he had consumed in the course of his life 53¾ tons of solid food and 42¾ tons of liquid, or about 1,280 times his own weight in both solids and liquids, but it would be quite true.

Being a man of average appetite and purse, he would have eaten 15 tons of bread, which would have made a single loaf containing 1,200 cubic feet and appearing about as large as the average suburban home, and on this bread he would have spread one ton of butter. If his bacon had been cut in single slices the strip would have been four miles long, and his chops, placed end to end, would have extended two miles. Twenty ordinary-sized bullocks have supplied him with beef, some 18 tons of which he has eaten, along with 5 tons of fish and 10,000 eggs and 350 pounds of cheese. If he had elected to have all his vegetables served at once, they would have come to him on a train of cars, the pod containing all his peas being over three miles long. He has had 9,000 pounds of sugar, 1,500 pounds of salt, 8 pounds of pepper and 100 cans of mustard. Three pints of liquid a day would have amounted to 76,600 pints or 42¾ tons.—Washington Star.

Old English Monarch Man of Modern Ideas

Burglary insurance is no modern institution. It seems to have existed from the time of King Alfred and was probably introduced by this king who, had he lived in these times, would have made a name as a successful business man.

The town of Ripon, England, he gave in 866 into the charge of a council, who appointed a watchman to blow a horn every night at nine o'clock. Between that hour and sunrise the town was quiet and no one was supposed to be abroad. But Ripon was not altogether a law-abiding place and presently the town authorities found it necessary to protect its peaceful citizens against raiders and robbers.

And so a law was passed that any householder wishing so to protect his house from robbery should pay 4 pence a year to the authorities. Then, if his house was entered and his goods stolen or damaged between the blowing of the horn and sunrise, he could claim from the town council, who undertook to compensate him.—Music and Youth.

Natural Pendulum

A giant pendulum, formed by a strange freak of nature, swings in Yellowstone National park, not far from Old Faithful geyser, according to the official government naturalist in charge of the lecture and nature study work of the United States national park service. It consists of the trunk of a lodge pole pine, suspended by its top between two other trees of the same species and swinging by its base, so that a mere touch will set it to swaying. Apparently the tree fell or was blown over many years ago, its top becoming lodged in the tops of its neighbors, which grew out and surrounded it, supporting it securely. Subsequently several feet of its base rotted away, leaving it suspended in midair. One of the park nature trails has been run near this strange natural grandfather clock, and tourists are permitted to set it swinging.

Language and Life

The one supremely significant fact in the universe is, to quote Peabody's fine paraphrase, "the transformation of language into life." The belief is one of immense antiquity, though only of recent years susceptible of scientific explanation—the belief in the strange bewildering identity of sound and life. It has been claimed that all the visible creation in its countless forms has been built up sound-wise, upon a system of harmonic vibration—that, in the shell, the fern, the fir-cone, the reptile, the fish, the bird, the same laws prevail that govern the stretched string, with all their harmonic progressions and "associated wave-lengths."

Explaining Law Term

Barratry is an old term of English law, derived from an Italian word signifying to cheat. Common barraty consists in habitually stirring up or maintaining quarrels or lawsuits, or in continually disturbing the peace by brawls, or in taking or detaining possession of property the right to which is in dispute. Habitually breeding discord between neighbors is also barratry. In marine insurance and in contracts relating to shipping generally, the term barratry means any fraud or knavery or willful wrongdoing on the part of the master of the ship or the crew, by which the interests of the owner are injured.

Keep Busy

Nine-tenths of the miseries and vices of manhood proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fail in their schemes not so much for want of strength as for their ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The drop of water by continued falling bores its passage through the hardest rock; the hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous roar, and leaves no trace behind.

It Must Have Been Good

"What are you asking for this sketch?" inquired Sir Joshua Reynolds of an old picture dealer.

"Twenty guineas, your honor," replied the dealer.

"Twenty pence, I suppose you mean," said Reynolds.

"No, sir," answered the dealer, "I would have taken twenty pence for it this morning; but, if you think it worth looking at, all the world will think it worth buying."

Sir Joshua Reynolds ordered the sketch sent home.—Market for Exchange.

BATES—WEST PARIS

Death of Frank P. McKenney—Church Notes.

Frank P. McKenney who passed away December 11, was the son of William and Mary Bessey McKenney, and was born in Paris, July 21, 1861. He married Mary L. Lurvey of West Paris who passed away about eighteen years ago. Two children were born to them, Margie, wife of Vernon Ellingwood of Auburn, and Wirt S. McKenney of Melrose, Mass. He is also survived by four grandchildren. He is the last of nine children. He was one of the first R. F. D. carriers. About five years ago he suffered a paralytic shock which paralized his left side, but after a little he got about again and continued his R. F. D. work during the summer months by having an assistant go with him until this season when he had another shock and retired from the service, and then on Saturday, before his death, the third and final shock from which he never rallied. During the past five years he has been cared for in the home of Mabel Ricker who has discharged her duty faithfully. The funeral was held at the house. Rev. H. F. Aldrich, of Winthrop, a former pastor, officiated. He was a member of the F. & A. M. Granite Lodge who attended in a body but didn't perform their service. Interment was in West Paris cemetery.

Oxford County United Parish

Embracing Albany, North Lovell, Stoneham and the Waterfords. Pastoral Staff: Revs. W. I. Bull, B. F. Wentworth, A. C. Townsend

The moving picture being shown throughout the Parish this week is "The Fool" a Christmas story by Channing Pollock. It will be shown at North Waterford, Tuesday evening; South Waterford, Wednesday evening; East Stoneham, Thursday evening, with a supper; North Lovell, Friday evening.

Christmas will be observed in each community of the Parish. At South Waterford Grange Hall, there will be a supper and Christmas tree on Monday night for South Waterford and Waterford. North Waterford will have a supper and tree also on Monday night. East Stoneham will have a tree on Monday night. North Lovell on Tuesday night. Albany probably later in the week.

The drama, "The Heart of Maine" with a cast from North Waterford, which was recently given at North Waterford, will be repeated at South Waterford Grange Hall on Friday evening of this week. The proceeds will be used for the expenses of the next winter carnival.

Rev. and Mrs. Bull were called to Arcostook last week by the death of a relative.

The Parish Health Committee, Mrs. Wentworth, chairman are making plans for health meetings beginning the second week of January, at East Stoneham with transportation from North Lovell and North Waterford.

Mr. Bull took a delegation of boys to the Y. M. C. A. boys' conference in Portland, last week.

WATERFORD FLAT

Birthplace of Artemus Ward and Ten Miles N. W. from Norway

Miss Mabel Gage was hostess for the first Circle to be held in Camp Beautiful on Friday evening. There were over a hundred people present. After the supper was served, Miss Gage gave a very interesting talk about her trip to Alaska.

Miss Julia Morse is at her home for the Christmas vacation. She teaches school in Canton.

A good delegation from both villages went to Norway last week to attend a hearing held before the State Highway Commission, with regard to having the macadam road from Bridgton, through the villages of Waterford, to Norway.

A fine collection of books, numbering over five hundred, has been placed in the Library. A beautiful photo on the wall reads, "The Susan Hamlin Wilkins Collection." These books were bequeathed to the library by the late Miss Susan Hamlin Wilkins. Two beautiful steel engravings belonging to Miss Wilkins have also been placed in the library.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Morgan were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morgan of South Paris, on Sunday.

The village "Cut champion" who was defeated last week, is ready to be beaten again. E. L. Stone is overhauling his famous chine, getting ready for the bout with the champion.

Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard went to Portland on Saturday. They went to the Maine General Hospital, where Mrs. Flora A. Hubbert underwent surgery at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

It is getting to be quite the style to move buildings around on our streets. Fred Wentworth moved a building from the old Ripley farm, to be used for a tenement house by the Fifield-Jones, and Ralph Millett has moved a garage from Stoneham Waterford to his home on Milton Hill. We wonder what building will be moved next to change its location.

"INSIDE INFORMATION"

When a recipe calls for browned buttered bread crumbs on the top of any dish melt the butter in a pan and mix the crumbs with it before spreading them on the food to be cooked. In stuffings, puddings and other recipes calling for buttered crumbs this method gives tastier results than placing dots of butter here and there on the dish.

Small articles of wood on the farm, such as fence posts, poles, and hog and chicken houses, that are exposed to much dampness and consequent rot, may be made more durable by preservative treatment with coal-tar creosote. Good results can be obtained by heating the wood in the creosote oil in an open tank and allowing the wood and oil to cool together. This treatment will enable wood to last 3 to 5 times as long as untreated wood.

Public Men I Have Known

John P. Swasey, Eloquent Lawyer—Judge Walton, Ablest Member of the Court

No. 6. by C. F. Whitman

John P. Swasey in his day, was the most eloquent of the jury lawyers, who practiced at the Oxford County Bar. It should not be assumed from this statement that his eloquence so swayed the minds of the men sitting to determine the rights of parties that they would lose sight of the true and just verdict, they were sworn to render. And this is the tribute I pay to the Oxford County juryman whom I intimately knew for the twenty years I was clerk. There were only two cases—one civil and the other criminal—where the wrong verdict was given and in these cases some of the jurymen obtained in some way what was not legitimate evidence for them to consider, but they thought they had a right to act upon it.

Often have I seen a whole court room of people amused, delighted and even charmed with an eloquent plea which failed to affect the judgment of the jurymen and the intelligent persons who heard it.

I cannot help thinking that had Mr. Swasey practiced his profession in one of the big cities of the country where the foreign element of many races predominated, that he would have rivalled even Rufus Choate as a pleader.

A lawyer of Mr. Swasey's ability as an examiner of witnesses and as an eloquent pleader, does and says many things to please his clients which he knows have no weight whatever with learned judges like Walton, Virgin and Peters.

The following is an illustration: One Charles Bartlett of Hanover—in the old days when cattle drovers for the Brighton, Mass., market, like 'Gust Bolster, Cole Lord and George Andrews of Norway flourished—at one time had a law suit with a man who had probably got the better of him in a farrow cow trade. But whatever the cause, Bartlett had an especial dislike for his opponent. Mr. Swasey was Bartlett's counsel, and when the case was tried and Swasey came to make his plea, Bartlett charged him "to show his opponent up" and lash him without mercy. That Mr. Swasey could do such a job as that in the most thorough manner possible, no one who ever knew him could have the slightest doubt. It is very doubtful whether in many cases the eloquent pleader really helped his case in doing it for there is always a general feeling at such times that the opposite party was being treated too severely, but Bartlett was in ecstacies over the castigation Mr. Swasey had administered and taking a five dollar bill from his pocket, said, "Take this, John, extra for your blistering the d—d sneak's hide. It did me that much good to hear it."

Judges get very tired of hearing questions asked witnesses, which have no bearing on the cases at issue and talk made that for all legitimate purposes might better be dispensed with. Some endeavor to check this "diarrhea of words characterized by a constipation of thought" while other judges allow the stream to flow on till the sources are dry.

Judge Walton was not of the latter kind. He endeavored to keep gasseous advocates so far as possible "within due bounds." On one occasion, a matter was argued before him by two lawyers. The case was a simple one, and it seemed to me to be one requiring no great amount of eloquence, but the attorneys thought differently. One of them talked quite loudly, flourished his arms, as he might have done before a large audience in making a stump speech, and would rise up and down on his toes when he thought he was saying something very weighty. The very few of the spectators who were present were visibly stirred with merriment. The Judge listened a while, but getting impatient, remarked, "Mr. Attorneys, I like to hear you both well enough, but neither of you is touching the question at issue." The flow of talk subsided. It was a merited rebuke. That was characteristic of Judge Walton. Of course he was not popular with the class of lawyers such as the two mentioned, but it was different with such attorneys as John P. Swasey. Judge Walton quite frequently warned him "to keep within the rule." Swasey knew that the Judge was right, but he had an object in view, either to please his client or to get certain extraneous matters before the jury that might influence them, and consequently did not blame the judge. A novice in such cases, not understanding the "tricks of the trade" upon witnessing such episodes in court might naturally conclude that the attorney was right and would blame the Judge.

I have frequently heard Mr. Swasey speak in the highest terms of Judge Walton. The real fact is that he considered Judge Walton the ablest member of the court and respected him accordingly.

Mr. Swasey was a capital story teller and many of the interesting ones he related and the witty things he said during his practice at the bar will be long remembered. If they could all be collected together, they would fill a large volume and would be one of the most readable books ever published.

The first breach of promise case in Androscoggin County was brought by Mr. Swasey for a woman against a real rustic whose manner of speech was a drawl. He had attended the same school with Mr. Swasey, when they were boys, but later in life had settled in Turner. In some way he had become acquainted with the Plaintiff, who owned a little stand in a distant village. The fellow wrote to her to sell her place and come where he was and he would make her his wife. This took a little time and when she had disposed of her property and went to meet an expected husband, she found that he had married another woman. She promptly laid her case before Mr. Swasey who brought a suit for damages. Judge Walton presided at the trial of the case. In his testimony, the defendant in referring to Mr. Swasey, several times called him in his drawling tones, "Jorn." Finally the Judge, tiring of hearing it, said: "Mr. Witness, speak more respectfully of the counsel."

"Wal, yer honor, people may call him Lawyer Swasey; Mr. Swasey; Hon. Jorn Swasey, or anything else they hev a mine ter, but he'll allers be plain Jorn Swasey to me."

That there was considerable merriment at this may well be assumed. Mr. Swasey obtained a verdict for his client of $800 and costs. When paying the judgment to Mr. Swasey, the defendant said, "I don't blame you any, Jorn, but between you an' me, there's more then that difference between ther two wimmen."

In a contested line case, the issue turned largely upon the survey of Gilbert Barrett of Buckfield. This was unfavorable for Mr. Swasey's client in the case and the eloquent counsel thought it necessary to discredit and "lambast" the surveyor in his plea thus: "Gentlemen of the jury: you have heard the testimony of Mr. Barrett, and seen the drawing made, from his survey with his ancient compass. I do not know what education in running lines he has had, but I'll be bound to say, gentlemen, that could he be dropped into the center of a twenty acre timber lot with his antiquated compass, he couldn't run himself out to save his life."

The "antiquated compass' in the hands of Mr. Barrett stood the test before the jury, notwithstanding that the "twelve men and true" with about everyone else, including the Judge, were charmed with the plea of the eloquent advocate.

DON'T WRITE IT "XMAS"

The Charlotte, N. C., Observer very wisely, under the above heading protests against the use of the term "Xmas" for Christmas. We are glad that some daily paper has taken up the matter, for just how people can be so thoughtless as to use simply the letter "X" to indicate Christ's name is rather amazing to anyone who stops to think.

"Xmas", intended to represent the birth of the World's Redeemer, is a sad reflection upon our thoughtfulness. More power to the Charlotte Observer is undertaking to change the use of this term. The Observer says: "Is the "X", when used in 'Xmas, intended to be algebraically as a symbol for an unknown quantity? It would certainly seem that thinking was not a part of the policy of people who use the term "Xmas" instead of "Christmas", but most people have done so thoughtlessly and without any reflection upon the divine origin or meaning of the term.—Berlin Reporter.

Snow Removal

Routes to Be Kept Open This Winter

A total of 3,350 miles of "winter routes" will be kept open for travel in Maine this year, according to the list of applications filed by towns with the State Highway Commission for aid in clearing the highways of snow.

State aid to towns for snow removal was made possible by an act passed by the legislature in 1927, and was operative for the first time last winter. Under the law, two or more towns may petition the State Highway Commission to lay out winter routes on State highways, State aid highways and town ways. The towns furnish the snow removal equipment and do the work, which must be according to the satisfaction of the commission, and the State reimburses the towns for one-half the cost up to $25 per mile.

Routes in this vicinity to be kept open are as follows:

Route 18—Portland to Raymond, to Bridgton, to Fryeburg, to the New Hampshire line.
Route 26—Portland to Gray, to Norway, to Bethel.
Rotue 108—Bretton's Mills to Canton, to Peru, to Rumford.
Route 113—(Pequawket Trail) Standish to Hiram, to Fryeburg.
Route 2—New Sharon to Farmington; Wilton to Dixfield, to Rumford, to Bethel.

BUDDY

"I have been asked to tell something about myself," said Buddy, the dog.

"I have been told that girls and boys have written letters and have asked that surely before long there would be a dog story. And so I was called upon to tell what I could do and some of my dog thoughts and dog ways. It is true I cannot talk the talk of people, but some one who knows me well has watched me and learned enough of my language so that my story can be translated into the words used by men and women, boys and girls.

"In the first place, I am half-shepherd and half-collie. I am considered a nice-looking dog by those who know me and I only tell this because it is nice to know what a creature looks like.

"And, too, I have been asked to tell something of my looks and to tell what kind of a dog I am.

"So now I have told that. I am not conceited about my looks, as I don't like conceit. My master doesn't like conceit either. And goodness, gracious me, if he isn't conceited I am sure I have no right to be. You see my master is very bright, very bright and very smart. He's very clever and very kind and many has been the person I've heard him call brilliant.

"They say he has a 'brilliant career ahead of him,' and I can tell from the way they speak that they mean very fine things are ahead for him, and I'm glad of that, for the more good things that come to him, the happier will Buddy be. He has already done remarkable things and he is very young to have done so much that is clever, they say. Well, I'm glad he's young, though to my dog mind he isn't so young in actual years. For he's grown up. But he's young for a person, it's said, a person who is already a doctor.

"I don't believe I told you he was a doctor? Well, that is what he is and that is what he has been for some little while and what he expects to always be. But the reason I'm so glad he's young is not only because he has this fine future ahead of him, but because he is young enough to run races with me.

"We live in a city, but it is not far from a beach. And my master takes his little automobile and I jump in it beside him and we ride down to the beach late in the evenings and early in the mornings. Then we run and oh, what runs we have!

"Well, when my master has been away paying visits where I have not been able to go, even in the automobile, I always know when he is back.

"Lots of automobiles drive past our office and lots of automobiles stop in front of our office—you see I always call it 'our office' for I feel like a partner!—and yet I always know my master's automobile from any other.

"I know its particular way of sounding and that to my master seems very remarkable and I know he would want me to tell you that. Then every morning I know the hour the paper arrives and I am down at the door to get it for my master. I do not get there too much ahead of time, and I am never there late. For the man who delivers the paper and I are very regular in our hours. My master enjoys having me take him the morning paper and then for a few moments after breakfast we have a little game with a rubber ball—sometimes that has to be put off until later on, but once a day we get in our little game sometime. My master says that the things I know and the wise things I do are almost unbelievable. But if you're made a pet of as I am and some one treats you almost like a human being, why you can't help but become almost human. I know the various sounds of my master's voice. I know when he is in trouble, I know when he is gay and happy.

"When he is gay and happy I romp and play with him, but when he is worried or sad I thump my tail on the ground to let him know I am around and that I am sympathetic and I put my head in his lap to comfort him. I always greet him when he comes in, I always rejoice to see him. He knows how happy he makes me, but, oh, he doesn't know all the happiness he brings into my dog life. No, he can never know all!"

HOW

RECENT INVENTION WILL REDUCE PRICE OF SILK.—Silk has always been considered an article of luxury on account of its high cost in comparison with other textile materials, writes United States Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean from Rome. This has been due in large degree to the labor necessary in handling the cocoons and preparing the thread for spinning. Consequently the silk industry has flourished only in countries where cheap labor is available.

After soaking the cocoons in water the thread has always been unreeled by hand, which is a work of great delicacy, but one for which it has not been possible to pay high wages. Thus, while silk weaving in Italy has been making progress the preparation of the raw silk has shown a decline. It is now reported that an Italian silk expert has succeeded in perfecting a machine which will perform the operation of unreeling the thread mechanically. A new company has recently been formed, which has taken over the patents covering the invention and will manufacture the machines.

If the invention succeeds commercially as well as it has in the experiments that have been made it bids fair to revolutionize the silk industry, and, according to the inventor, the cost of silk may be reduced to such an extent that it will be able to compete with cotton and linen.

MAN'S NOSE SENSITIVE ORGAN

How Extraordinarily Minute Particles In Air at Once Affect the Olfactory Nerve.

Do you know why you have to "sniff the air" when trying to detect a faint odor? It is because the nerves governing the sense of smell are not located, as is generally supposed, in the nasal passages, but in an area of sensitive membrane about the size of a dime and located high above each nostril.

A portion of the hairlike tips of the olfactory nerves terminating in this membrane receives the sense impression and conducts it to the brain. Because of the position of this membrane outside the natural path of the breath, it is necessary to draw aside a current of air by sniffing before the exact shade of odor can be determined.

The effects of snuff and smelling salts have nothing to do with the sense of smell. They react only on the linings of the nasal passages.

So far as physiologists have been able to learn, smells are pigeonholed in the brain as visual impressions. Each smell carries associations good or bad and these associated images are brought forth by the brain when particular nerves are excited.

The reaction of the brain to an odor depends also to a large extent on the sense of taste. Only by combining the brain reports of these two senses can odors be accurately catalogued.

Degenerate as the olfactory nerve sense in man has become through evolution, it still retains the marvelous ability to detect one part of camphor in four hundred thousand parts of air, and one part of vanillin in ten million parts of air. As for the obnoxious smell mercaptan, the human nose can detect the presence of one part in twenty-five trillion parts of air.—Popular Science Monthly.

How Icebergs Are Detected.

Icebergs are probably the greatest menace to trans-Atlantic shipping: it was an iceberg which sent the great Titanic to the bottom with such fearful loss of life.

A new device has been brought out by a French inventor which detects icebergs when they are six miles away. Melting ice sends out rays which are invisible to the eye, but which will affect a delicate instrument called the thermo-couple. This apparatus can be made so finely that it will register the presence of a lighted candle at a distance of half a mile.

The thermo-couple is connected to a telephone receiver on the bridge of the ship. When conditions are normal it emits a continuous note of unchanging pitch. As soon as an iceberg is approached, however, the note changes, and the look-out man knows at once that there is danger.

Selfish Sinners

Men who walk on tiptoe all through life, holding up their skirts for fear they shall touch their fellows—who are delicate and refined in feeling, and who ring all the bells of taste high up in their own belfry where no one else can hear them, these dainty fools are the greatest sinners of all, for they use their higher faculties to serve the devil with.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Growth of Coral Varies

Little is known regarding the rapidity of growth in corals. A specimen of Mocandrina labyrinthica measuring a foot in diameter and four inches thick in the most convex part was taken from a block of concrete at Fort Jefferson, Tortugas, which had been calculated that the average growth of a Mocandrina observed at Key West was half an inch a year.

Magnets Last Long

The life of a permanent magnet, magnetized in any manner whatever, has never been determined. A magnet made of the best quality of steel, properly heat-treated and aged, and used under the best conditions of service, would probably deteriorate only a negligible amount in the lifetime of a single observer.

Habits of Pelicans

The pelican is the largest of the web-footed birds. One species is common in the Mississippi valley. In winter it migrates to the Gulf coast. The birds are highly sociable, living in colonies and frequently following a co-operative plan in their fishing.

PATRONIZE HOME TRADE

Some residents evidently do not realize to how great an extent they are hurting home trade by occasionally ordering goods from mail order houses.

"What difference does it make", one resident remarked, "if I send a few dollars to mail-order houses every now and then?

Were her particular case the only one of its nature in town, it would make but little difference, but individual cases in the aggregate do make a great deal of difference. She is only one of hundreds who are doing the same thing she is doing, and, added together, 'the amounts have been estimated to total a large amount. It is the small buyers that keep the mail-order houses going. While we have no way of knowing what the mail orders average in any particular house, yet it is safe to say that the sum is only a few dollars.

The $2.98 you send away today is not much in itself, but when it is pooled with hundreds of other like amounts it makes a substantial sum. That $2.98, or 69 cents, or however small the amount may be is a very important matter in every mail-order house. The small sums form by far the greatest part of millions of dollars of mail-order business done in this country every year.

So spend your $2.98's with local merchants. If you do that, you will not only be helping them and your town, but will also be helping yourself by keeping more money in circulation here. If you spend your $2.98 here, you stand a chance of getting a part of it back some day, but if you send it away the entire sum is taken out of local circulation.

BUY YOUR "ONIONS" HERE

"We find it necessary to speak again of a subject which is important to everybody. We refer to the practice of buying articles from the mail order houses.

The buyers tell us that they can buy certain things cheaper from these mail order houses than they can buy from our own local merchants.

Well, it is not true about everything, and even if it is, what of it?

There is more in life than the apparent saving of a few paltry pennies. When you need another school in your town, who builds it? When you need a street paved who paves it? The answer to the latter query is Nobody.

Why? There is no money to pay for them.

Why, Because too many people patronize the so-called mail order houses.

Buy from home town merchants, especially of those who advertise.

Look through our paper, accept the invitations and buy at home.

Visitors in town are those who take their time as everybody ought to.

HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Master Ronald Tyler celebrated his eighth birthday with a party at his home Monday afternoon from 3.30 to 5.30. Games were played and everyone enjoyed themselves. Mrs. Tyler served refreshments, including a birthday cake. The young host received many little presents.

Those present were, Martha Hosmer, Iva Yates, Lurline Martin, Marion and Robert Chute, Charles Olmstead, John Cullinan and Edward Luck.

The December meeting of the Norway W. C. T. U. was held the 12th. at the home of Mrs. Minnie Aldrich, Beal Street with Mrs. Abra Clark, assisting. Christmas quotations at roll call was followed by Grace Richmond's story, "The Evening Before Christmas, read by Mrs. Alice Danforth. The hostesses served refreshments.

In the Wearies the other day a member proclaimed that, like Caesar's wife, a certain woman defendant was above suspicion." And since then F. E. DeCoster has been going through the Municipal Court files in an effort to discover who Mr. and Mrs. Caesar were.

Oliver Merrill, who has been laid up at his home for six weeks with acute bronchitis, is about town but not fully recovered.

Mrs. De Leon French and children have moved from Main Street, South Paris, to a rent in the Stuart house on Whitman Street.

Mrs. Charles H. Sargent entertained the Ladies' Auction Club, Monday evening. The meeting next week will be on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Henry B. Foster served lunch Wednesday at one o'clock to the members of the Jolly Club and the afternoon was devoted to bridge with four tables at play.

THE CHICKEN STEALING STORY

Charles Huff, steam fitter for Wm. C. Leavitt Co., lost eight pullets from his hen house. This was Thanksgiving week. November 30, Ray Bennett bought three pullets alleged to come from Otisfield and paid $4.50. He paid by check, hence established the date. The young buddies were recognized as belonging to Mr. Huff.

All this came about after catching a chicken thief in his hen house last Saturday in the act of "bagging up" desirable pullets for the local trade.

No court record was made but a lecture was given by the judge. We withhold names and trust the lesson may have good affects.

Monday afternoon was the time for meeting of the Monday Club and Mrs. Geneva Cook, the hostess. The Annual Christmas Party will be held next week.

The annual meeting of Oxford Chapter, No. 168, Order of the Eastern Star, will be held Tuesday evening, January 1. Supper will be served at 6.30 in charge of L. I. Gilbert, E. B. Jackson, Norman Greenlaw, Albert Towne, Winfred Knight, Fred Brown, Charles Akers, Horace Kimball, Stuart Goodwin and Leroy Spiller.

George F. Hill has got a crew working on the Hudson Knight lot, off Fore Street, Oxford. "Bide" Andrews of Paris is to handle the hard wood and pine and John Pike the pulp and cord wood. Lee Jack of Norway is to do the sawing and Arthur Richardson, the marking. The lumber is to be piled in the H. D. Smith field. They started sawing last Monday.

The canary is dead. It lived in a golden cage and sweetly sang and warbled cheer in the home of Miss Edith Smith on Deering Street.

Heard on the street: "Yes, we are to put a cockroach in her stocking; she likes to go South so well—where they (cockroaches) are so plenty."

The Barton Reading Club was entertained Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Inez B. Hills. Mrs. Pauline Allen was the reader.

Two windows at the S. J. Record Co. show Santa Claus hauled over the country by his reindeer, besides other attractive displays dear to the children. Ronell Bicknell was the decorator.

Additional clerks are on duty in several stores. Business generally is reported good and said to match the gross sales for the same time last year.

The Browning Reading Club held their annual get-together, Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Florence Pike. The special feature was the Christmas tree, which was gaily decorated and laden with gifts. Mrs. Annie Favor acted as Santa Claus. A pleasing program included selections on the victrola and Mrs. Helena Nelson read a Christmas story. Greeting cards were received from the General and the Maine Federation of Women's clubs. Refreshments were served. The evening's program was under the direction of the program committee, Miss Dorothy Noble, Mrs. Florence Bradbury and Mrs. Annie Favor.

Percy M. Walker of North Newry was in town Wednesday. He estimated the loss in his recent mill fire at $15,000, but as yet has made no plans to rebuild. The mill was rushed with large orders and extra help had been engaged for the winter so the loss was a serious blow.

George Cummings, 33 Cottage Street is to move to Locke's Mills and wants to sell his house. See ad.

One can always be in the minority if he takes up with every new movement.

Mothers—Try Mild Children's Musterole

Of course, you know good old Musterole; how quickly, how easily it relieves chest colds, sore throat, rheumatic and neuralgic pain, sore joints and muscles, stiff neck and lumbago.

We also want you to know CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE—Musterole in milder form. Unexcelled for relief of croupy coughs and colds; it penetrates, soothes and relieves without the blister of the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Keep a jar handy. It comes ready to apply instantly, without fuss or bother.

CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE WILL NOT BLISTER MILD

Better than a mustard plaster

A Checking Account

Among the many advantages of a check account are a few that are recognized by everybody:

As a means of safeguarding your funds.

As a means of accounting for your funds.

As a means of saving your money.

As a means of saving your time.

As a means of establishing your credit.

As a means of building up a reserve.

For one or more of these reasons a check account at this bank is found by many to be the most satisfactory way of handling their funds.

BASKET BALL

Bliss College 39; Paris H. S. 37

Bliss College's ability to spot fouls was one of the causes working for the defeat of South Paris High School at the gym, Friday evening. Both teams played neck and neck with South Paris, three floor baskets in the lead. Bliss took advantage of free tries and landed nine points against a lone mark secured by Paris. The home outfit resorted to long shots at the ring with House and Russell the high card tossers. Silverman was the basket weaver for Bliss. Summary:

Annual Meeting of Board of Trade

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the Odd Fellows' dining room, Thursday evening, preceded by a supper served by the American Legion Auxiliary.

President Harry M. Shaw presided and introduced Rev. R. H. Colby of the Congregational Church who talked on his impressions of South Paris during a residence of eleven months.

A general discussion of things as they are and things that might be accomplished sometime. The meeting voted to support the president in his action of signing a contract for 750 programs at ten cents apiece made with the advance agent of the snowshoe racers who finish a trip in So. Paris in a course from Montreal to Lewiston and remain here over night. A committee appointed to arrange for reception and entertainment of the visitors expected here about Jan. 31st, includes Harry M. Shaw, George F. Eastman, D. M. Stewart, Ralph R. Butts and A. F. Goldsmith.

The matter of maintaining winter roads was left with the committee. O. K. Clifford, Nelson G. Elder, Harry Brown, Richard H. Gates and George L. Skinner, who will confer with the selectmen and the road commissioners.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Pres.—J. Harold Neal.
Vice Pres.—E. N. Haskell. C. O. Barrows.
Sec.—Lucian F. Davis.
Treas.—B. W. Tuttle.

Paris Grange

All of the regular officers of Paris Grange were present at the meeting held Saturday, Dec. 15. The third and fourth degrees were conferred on four candidates from Norway and three from Paris Grange. Paris degree team did the work very finely. Nearly twenty were present from Norway and a very interesting meeting was held. Paris Grange will go to West Paris and a joint installation of the officers will be held the second Saturday of January.

The Orange & Black Store opened in the I. O. O. F. block, Saturday, with presents given to all visitors. Patronage was good from a clean cut line carried by the concern.

The Community Christmas tree in Market Square is adding a lot to the holiday spirit. Colored lights are effectively arranged on the branches, and proving one of the attractions for the week.

Henry W. Morton has gone to Crystal, N. H., for the winter. He returned recently from timber cruising in Labrador.

Spilling day was observed at the Court House last week when Sheriff Wm. O. Frothingham and his deputies poured some 250 gallons of contraband stuff down the sewer.

Harold Tufts underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils at Dr. Cobb's hospital in Auburn. He returned home Saturday.

Ralph B. Knightly was among those who attended the State Grange at Augusta.

Percy Walker's Mill Destroyed

The wood working mill of Percy M. Walker at North Newry was burned to the ground on the afternoon of December 19. A shed nearby was saved. Replacement value of the property destroyed is estimated well toward $25,000 for the machinery is almost a total loss. The foundation of the building is unharmed and it is believed the boiler and the stack will be in condition to use.

Mrs. Walker, employed in the upper part of the mill, discovered the fire at 4 o'clock and the flames made rapid headway. There was little time to save anything in the building. Cause of the fire is not known.

The mill employed some thirty men and women in the manufacture of shovels and candy sticks. For the past year the plant has not been able to keep up with the orders. A crew in the woods probably will be affected by the loss of the mill.

A family covered dish supper will precede the Christmas tree in the Baptist vestry, Monday evening, Dec. 24. All connected with the church or parish will receive a welcome. The Young People's Society of the Universalist Church will meet Monday at 6 p. m., for a covered dish supper. A tree and pageant will follow. This will be a gathering for all interested in the church. Similar gatherings will be held the same evening at the Methodist and Congregational Churches.

A lively meeting of Boy Scouts was held in the gym, Monday evening. Instruction, tests and basket ball occupied the time. There was a good attendance.

Levi Durepo of Rumford visited his brother, Linwood Durepo, and wife, Sunday.

Allan Miller attended a meeting of the Lions' Club at Bethel, Wednesday evening being a member of the entertainment committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Penfold spent Saturday at Portland.

Clarence Briggs, employed on construction work at Hebron Academy, is home for the week end and holiday.

A joint meeting of K. K. K. and the Women's Klan was held Tuesday evening and an interesting program carried out with a good number present. Among the out of town speakers were the Realm Commander; the Grand Dragon of Maine and the Great Titan.

Miss Helen Libby of Scarboro has been a guest of Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Colby.

Miss Marion Allen, Miss Dorothy Dean, Miss Stella Mills and Miss Ruth Brown of Gorham Normal School will spend the Christmastide at their various homes in town.

Frank McGinley, athletic coach and instructor at Bangor, is spending the holidays at his home.

DISEASED RABBITS

A diseased rabbit may have a kick equal to the proverbial white mule and it may be fatal if the disease is what is known as Tularemia, according to E. M. Mills of the Rodent Control office, Amherst, Mass., who has issued a warning to prevent infection.

Tularemia, he says, has infected 420 people, proving fatal to 20 and that the wild rabbit is the animal chiefly responsible for the spread in the eastern section of the country. Since there is no successful treatment or protective vaccine discovered, extreme care should be exercised.

"The first manifestation of the disease," he continues, "is felt by pain, tenderness, and swelling in the lymph glands draining the regions of infection. An inflamed and painful ulcer may soon appear at the point of contact. This may be accompanied by sudden onsets of headache, aching pains, chills, prostration, general weakness, and fever. The patient may not recover for three or more months.

"If hunting wild rabbits, do not bag any animals that have appeared dull, dopey, or slow-moving. They should be buried immediately. The most characteristic symptoms of the disease in a rabbit are yellowish or whitish specks on the liver and spleen.

"The best protection against the disease if handling or dressing rabbits is to wear rubber gloves, although this method is not always certain. If diseased rabbits are kept in cold storage for thirty days, they are safe to use. There is no danger from eating rabbit meat if it has been thoroughly cooked, even though the animal may have been infected."

Tularemia has not yet made its appearance in the New England states and New York, and efforts are being made to prevent its introduction. Further information can be obtained from the Rodent Control Office, Fernald Hall, Amherst, Mass., or the U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C.

"A Penny Here and a Penny There."

Story of What Girls Learn in Studying Home Economics

In order to be successful in life, a person must "live within his income." It makes no difference whether there is one person or more in the family. And a home economics girl must learn how to spend money most efficiently and with the greatest return in satisfaction for the cash expended. Then there is the management of labor and the problem of "What shall I buy and what shall I make at home?" To successfully meet all these requirements, a home economics girl is required to take some course in economics. The word "economics" comes from the Greek and means "the management of household property."

In order that no time may be lost, a freshman, on entering, is given a little work on budgets and how the family income should be divided among different necessities: Food, shelter, clothing, health, savings, charity, recreation, etc. Each girl is required to keep an account book of all her personal expenditures during her college course. This is passed in to the instructor twice a year to be checked. It is used later on in the senior year. As a freshman also, the girl plans a tentative clothing budget for her college years. It is often surprising how things count up. After a few years of experience, she makes out another budget for her senior year and her first year out of college. This usually shows much better judgement than the first one. Budget planning must be based on actual knowledge of cost of food, clothing, rent, etc. By keeping account books one gets this knowledge.

A course in economics is required of all the girls. This course gives one a general knowledge of how the business world is run, the laws of supply and demand, etc. Some of this is taken up in regard to specific articles included in the foods and clothing course, also. The seniors have a course called "household management," which correlates all the knowledge of economics which has been scattered through courses in the other years. This course raises to the standing of a real profession. The relation between the home and the economic and social phrases of the world outside is shown. The girls are educated to become more intelligent buyers. Budgets, schedules, study of equipment—all aim to make the home as efficient an concern as the business concern. Why shouldn't a home be run scientifically?

What business man would ever dream of not keeping accounts and finding out whether or not the money was going faster than it was coming in? And yet many a home is run without a plan. Of course, this plan is not always on paper, necessarily, for one may have a perfectly workable budget tucked away in the corner of one's brain and live by that. The mother is often responsible for the personal improvement of members of the family by providing magazines, books, papers, music, theatre tickets, etc. We need, then, to learn what resources we have to choose from and how to obtain a happy medium between the family with no outside interests and the one which is so wrapped up in society that there is no place left for home life. Family health, child training, and family relationships also come under this course. The ideal family is happy together and has mutual understanding and tolerance for its members.

Perhaps most of this work seems to be concerned primarily with the homemaker. If you stop to think, however, you will see that this is one of the big things which a teacher must teach her classes of senior or junior high girls or boys. The extension worker needs it to show women how to make ends meet and still get the maximum happiness from life. All of us can use such knowledge to our individual life. The study of economics occupies a place in the curriculum which no other subject could fill.

HUMANIZING TRAPPING

Some of your readers are very likely following the growing movement to humanize trapping. Several states have enacted laws controlling use of the steel trap and others have had bills under consideration with this aim. Game commissioners are many of them in favor of reform and the General Federation of Women's Clubs advocates legal abolition of devices for capturing furbearing animals which do not kill immediately or take unhurt. The public generally is coming to realize that present methods of trapping are inconsistent with modern notions of justice to the lower orders of life.

Those who have witnessed the agony of trapped animals need not be told that victims of the steel-trap endure terrible suffering directly, and indirectly, distress from privation and cold. These facts are vividly depicted in a book entitled "From Thumbscrew to Steel-trap" which may be secured from the American S. P. C. A., New York or may be read in most of the larger libraries. Dr. Edward Breck of the Anti-Steel-Trap League, shows motion pictures of trapped furbearers which plead their cause with pitiful eloquence. The protection of domestic animals from traps of all sorts is a problem in itself deserving attention. A good many devices of a more humane description are already on the market.

About one hundred traps were submitted to the American Humane Association, in Albany, New York in a recent contest, many of them developed by trappers. S. C. Booth, East Farnham, Quebec, Canada was awarded first prize for a humanized steel-jaw trap and Herman Bleck of Hammond, Indiana won second. Third prize went to the Humane Animal Trap Company, Austin, Pa.

All interested in reducing the world's suffering are urged to co-operate in securing changes in methods of trapping. Contributions to assist campaigns may be sent to the Anti-Steel-Trap League, Washington, D. C.

BITTER FEEDS AND WEEDS—BITTER MILK

Abnormal flavors and odors in milk are objectionable to consumers and dealers and such milk is often rejected. Losses can be largely prevented by proper attention to the several factors responsible for objectionable flavors and odors. They result mainly from the physical condition of the cow, from feeding of highly flavored feeds and weeds, from the absorption of barn odors by the milk after it is drawn, and from biological changes in the milk.

Feed flavors and odors are most frequently caused by succulent feeds. Silage made from corn, alfalfa, sweet clover, or soybeans, as well as such feeds as green alfalfa, cabbage, turnips, rape, and kale seriously affect the flavor and odor of the milk drawn even an hour after feeding. Therefore it is advisable to feed such highly flavored feeds immediately after milking, never just before. Where weeds in the pasture are responsible for off flavors in the milk, they must be eradicated or the cows removed from the pasture for several hours before milking.

Barns must be kept clean and well ventilated to prevent absorption of odors by the milk. Finally, prompt cooling and storing of the milk at a low temperature will retard the development of flavors and odors from biological action.

Give the hens a heavy feed of grain at night as cold weather comes on. It is a long time between their evening meal and breakfast.

BITTER FEEDS AND WEEDS—BITTER MILK

Abnormal flavors and odors in milk are objectionable to consumers and dealers and such milk is often rejected. Losses can be largely prevented by proper attention to the several factors responsible for objectionable flavors and odors. They result mainly from the physical condition of the cow, from feeding of highly flavored feeds and weeds, from the absorption of barn odors by the milk after it is drawn, and from biological changes in the milk.

Feed flavors and odors are most frequently caused by succulent feeds. Silage made from corn, alfalfa, sweet clover, or soybeans, as well as such feeds as green alfalfa, cabbage, turnips, rape, and kale seriously affect the flavor and odor of the milk drawn even an hour after feeding. Therefore it is advisable to feed such highly flavored feeds immediately after milking, never just before. Where weeds in the pasture are responsible for off flavors in the milk, they must be eradicated or the cows removed from the pasture for several hours before milking.

Barns must be kept clean and well ventilated to prevent absorption of odors by the milk. Finally, prompt cooling and storing of the milk at a low temperature will retard the development of flavors and odors from biological action.

Give the hens a heavy feed of grain at night as cold weather comes on. It is a long time between their evening meal and breakfast.

HOW ABOUT "MOTHER'S" CHRISTMAS?

"Mother" scurries around for weeks to get toys for the children, a tie for "Dad," a shawl for Grandma, a gift for the neighbor next door and all the "fixin's" for the table. Every one expects and gets a gift from "Mother," but how many gifts will be found on mother's end of the gift table, Christmas morning?

See that she gets her regular check or gift, Dad, see also that she gets a box of candy for her very own—the kind of a box you gave her before she was "Mother." She'll blush with pleasure and tell you that you should not have spent so much upon her, but deep within a mother's heart there will be a thrill that few other gifts can bring. A box of candy from "Dad" makes "Mother" feel that she is still the sweetheart of earlier days—and what better Christmas gift could "Mother" have than this?

Or if "Dad" has passed on and "Mother" is still here, see that a box of candy comes from "Sonny" or "My girl." She will nibble a bite as she stuffs the big turkey, and slyly slip others into the mouths of tiny grand-children who are spending the big day at grandma's house. Her day will be sweetened—in more ways than one.

Then came the goodbyes, some left on foot, others in a cozy roadster and the last two sitting close in a rumble seat rolled away amid peals of laughter. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Olive Barker, at No. 4.

SUMNER

Preparations for Lumbering Operations—Several Families in Camp.

Long time you don't see me, well just a few weeks back Silas Keniston of Locke's Mills representing the Tebbets Spool Company, wheeled into the neighborhood with the Company's five ton Packard truck loaded to capacity with furniture for their boarding house upon the Thompson place. With Mr. Keniston were two able assistants, Vernon Redding and Harry Norton both long time employees and skilled workmen. Silas, finding the roads in such excellent condition, made another trip the day following, this time the boys had on board three and a half tons of baled hay, it was just a few days previous to this moving that we learned that Mr. Keniston was to start up their birch mill at Locke's early this season where they have five thousand cords to saw, and also that he had hired Russell Edwards of Otisfield to come here and take charge of this mill which will be started up as soon as there is birch enough in the yard to guarantee a steady run of the mill. Mr. Edwards comes here highly recommended as an expert mill man of long experience at that line of business, and bringing nearly a full crew of experienced help with him. Yes, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover of Otisfield are to run the boarding house same as last season and it seems good to see them back.

At this writing, Dec. 16th, there is rather more than a foot of snow in the woods, but the ground everywhere is not frozen at all, swamps and all are in bad shape for woods work in any form with teams. The main roads were never better sledding, and automobiles are traveling about the same as ever.

Floyd Varney has been yarding out pulp from their Stetson lot, but at this time he and his brothers, Donald and Olpha, are cutting birch.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crockett and three sons, from Hartford Center, have moved into the camp upon the Sturtevant place formerly occupied by William Urquhart. Mr. Crockett and one of the boys are cutting birch for Mr. Chesley upon the Crockett lot.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Morrison, who have been working for Mr. Chesley the past summer, have moved into Mr. Chesley's upper camp near where L. F. Willis' saw mill used to set. Mr. Morrison has a pair of horses and will work them in the woods this winter.

Floyd Varney and Jerry Bartlett, with their oxen, moved a camp from Bert Thomas' wood lot down to the Tebbets boarding house for Howard Grover of Otisfield and Mr. and Mrs. Grover moved into it Saturday, the 15th. This camp is called number one, while there are three brand new camps just finished and occupied as follows, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Allard of Otisfield, Camp No. 2; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bailey fo Otisfield, Camp No. 3; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Davis of Welchville, Camp No. 4, all of which are within one hundred feet of the boarding house, making quite a settlement to be known as Mill Village, if you please. All of these boys are to work in the birch mill, just waiting for snow and rarin' to go.

Several have bad colds around here.

Mrs. Robert Millett made a friendly call upon Mrs. Emerson Bartlett and little daughters, Grace and Gertrude, who have been confined to the house for a week with bad colds.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS

"This year Maine had 4676 4-H club members enrolled and 3905 of this number, or 83.5 per cent completed their projects," said Lester H. Shibles, state club leader, University of Maine, "and," he continues, "from the standpoint of total membership and the high per cent completing their projects, it has been the best year we ever had."

Three hundred nine clubs were organized in the state and the membership composed 1865 boys and 2811 girls. Of the 309 clubs, 258 qualified for a charter which means that they had a local adult leader, regular meetings, a definite program and club officers of the 258 clubs. Two hundred thirty-five qualified for higher honors and received a seal. In addition to the requirements for a charter, a seal is given to those clubs who give a demonstration in the community, a judging contest and have 60 per cent or more of their members complete their work.

Maine 4-H members were active at the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass. Five club demonstration teams represented Maine at Camp Vail and two individual members were present at the Training School. Two boys and two girls from the 4-H clubs in Maine went to the National 4-H Club Encampment, Washington, D. C. in July.

The National 4-H Club Congress which was held recently in Chicago in connection with the International Livestock Exposition was attended by Margaret Williams, a club member from West Franklin. Miss Williams was accompanied by Mildred G. Brown, assistant state club leader.

Granite State Shoe Sermon

By the Bard of the Switzerland of America at Alton, N. H.
Special to the Norway Advertiser

The editor was recently invited to buy a pair of shoes of extra good quality and scientifically made. He demurred on the ground of sending business out of town. The answer to his letter follows:

"Your letter received. A fine showing you make in your advertising, I note that your anticipations for the future are greater than your achievements in the past. That's the idea. Onward, Christian Soldier, ever onward.

"I appreciate your attitude about the shoes, although not greatly admiring it. You are free to change your mind—which you perhaps will do.

"In olden times local trade meant that which was in the immediate or nearby territory. There is no longer any local trade worth the name. A merchant draws customers from great distances, if he has a specialty or anything unusual to offer. The automovile has changed many things.

"A merchant here makes a specialty of a certain kind of cheese, cured for a specified period of time before offered for sale, and he has customers whose homes are hundreds of miles distant—they like that particular kind of cheese.

"Another has a special brand of coffee, or coffee roasted a certain way. He sells it to people far distant. They come here in the summertime, get the aroma or the flavor of the coffee and their dealers at home don't get their trade for coffee.

"China once had a Great Wall; it was built to keep Chinese in and the "white devils" out. They got on, after a fashion; were undoubtedly proud of the Wall and imagined that exclusion was an excellent thing for their prosperity. But—since an opening was made in the Wall they have progressed; are doing better.

"This is the day of specialties: special goods, special ways of selling and of distribution. The old-time store that handled about everything from fishhooks to logging-chains, peanuts to patent medicines, and everything that was required around the home, farm and shop, is practically extinct. The few remaining ones will disappear with the present old-time owners. This is progress.

"As long as people buy from distant points their —automobiles, gas, oil and supplies.

—radios, batteries and repair parts.
—pianos and other musical instruments.
—cigars and booze.
—candy and fruit.
—furs and fine clothing.
—watches and jewelry.
—stoves, furnaces and refrigerating systems, and patronize the movies, I shall feel free to buy myself a pair of shoes wherever I can get the best value.

"About shoes: I paid a local dealer $9.85 for a pair, but they didn't satisfy. Then I paid $10 for another pair; some better. I then paid $6.85, not locally, and found them superior to the others.

"Shoes are probably as "blind" as anything we buy; that is, we cannot see what's inside. Certain parts of a hide are better than other parts, altho it is all leather. There is a wide difference in lasts and the care used in drawing the uppers over them. The inner soles are hidden, so are the counters. They may have real quality stock and be spoiled in the making; they may be scientifically made of inferior stock. The average man don't know what he is buying—and many dealers don't know a good shoe from an inferior one.

"Just ask your local dealer what he will charge for a pair of shoes that have Australian Kangaroo uppers, guaranteed.

8½ iron Oak Bend outsoles.
6 iron full grain insoles.
solid leather full cut heel base.
first quality Goodyear rubber heels
guaranteed Spaulding counters first quality white drill linings
all leather trimmings felt padded full cut tongues corrugated steel arch support continuous Goodyear Welt around the heels and guaranteed in every particular.

"The continuous welting: uppers, lining and counter Goodyear welted around the heel, is one of the greatest improvements in modern shoes, as it eliminates nails under the heel pad and gives a smooth surface with increased comfort to the wearer.

"I doubt if a dealer in Norway can supply a shoe with these specifications. If one can supply such, I will be glad to know his asking price."

Don't Fool 'Em. Tell Facts Only.

Do As You Agree
Story With Every Day Moral

I was born and raised on a farm. I farmed until I was about 10 years old.

During that tender period of my development I learned my first lesson in advertising. It was this way:

We had a small cattle pony on the farm. He had just two faults. First he was hard to catch, and secondly, he wasn't worth anything after you caught him.

I used to chase that pony all over a 20-acre lot trying to get a bridle on him, but he had other ideas about it. Finally I hit upon a plan. I approached him with an oats pan. It was the same receptacle we used to bring him oats from the bin. With the bridle behind my back and the empty oats pan in front, the pony fell an easy victim.

But just twice was I able to work the oats pan stunt. After that, he was harder to catch than ever. He had been stung before. I had promised him oats. He got the bridle.

Same way with the general public. I see merchants with their empty oats pans out in front trying to entice the customers, with promises of bargains. And when the customers arrive, lo there are no bargains—at least, not the bargains that the advertisements led them to expect.

And so the public has become more or less wary. Their confidence has been abused. They have become "advertising shy" in some communities. Not surprising either, is it?

Bargain advertising, if it's on the level, is all right, but let some merchant go wild on comparative prices and superlatives and unlimited promises and it won't be long until all advertising in that community will be under the pall of public suspicion.

I would like to live to see the day when all this wild-eyed store publicity shall pass into the discard.

Don't let erosion rob your soil of valuable plant food that has accumulated for centuries and can not be easily replaced. Soil specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture advise terracing and the planting of legumes, rye, and various cover crops in a rotation which will not leave farm lands so constantly exposed as does continuous cropping to corn, cotton, and other cultivated crops.

Many a man's first mistake was the selection of his parents.

HOW SOFT THE SHADES OF EVENING CREEP

How soft the shades of evening creep
O'er yonder dewy lea,
Where balmy winds have lulled to sleep
The tenants of the tree!
No wandering breeze is here to sweep
In winding ripple o'er the deep,
Yet swells the evening sea.

How calm the sky! Rest, Ocean, rest
From storm and ruffle free,
Calm as the image on thy breast
Of her that governs thee.
And yet beneath the moon's mild reign
Thy broad breast heaves as one in pain,
Thou dark and silent sea.

Thou art sounding on, thou mighty sea
Forever and the same!
The ancient rocks yet sing to thee
Whose thunders naught can tame.

Prevention of War

National Economic League Favors Acceptance 97 per cent Against 3 per cent

Acceptance of the Kellogg-Briand Anti-War Pact by the United States Senate is favored by a ninety-seven percent vote of the National Council of The National Economic League. The question submitted to the members of the League in a referendum mailed to them on November 2nd, was as follows: "Do you favor ratification by the United States of the Paris Multilateral Peace Pact (known as the Kellogg-Briand Treaty) as a step towards the prevention of war?"

The ballots returned up to November 21st, show 1617 of the members to be in favor, and only 45 opposed to the ratification of the Pact. The returns from each State, which the League also publishes, would seem to indicate that public opinion regarding the Treaty is much the same in all parts of the country. From twenty-five states the verdict in favor of its ratification was unanimous.

The purpose of the National Economic League, it is stated, is to aid in giving expression to the informed and disinterested opinion of the country on questions of paramount importance. The five thousand members of its Council are directly nominated and elected from each State solely with this aim in view. The members of the National Council of the National Economic League are directly nominated and elected by preferential ballot in each state, solely with a view to their stasding on qualifications as leaders of public opinion.

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss.
To the Honorable Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court to be held at Paris, within and for said County of Oxford on the second Tuesday of February, A. D. 1928.

Respectfully Represents, Nellie May Cash, resident at Lovell in the County of Oxford and State of Maine, that she was lawfully married to Raymond Cash, formerly of Woodstock in the County of Oxford and State of Maine and now of parts unknown, at Norway, in the County of Oxford and State of Maine on the 23rd day of April, A. D. 1927, by George F. Hathaway, authorized to solemnize marriages therein;

That the Libellant and Libellee cohabitated in this State after their said marriage;

That the Libellant resided in this State when the cause of divorce accrued as hereinafter set forth;

That the Libellant has resided in this State in good faith for one year prior to the commencement of these proceedings;

That the Libellant has ever been faithful to her marriage obligations, but that the said Libellee has been unmindful of the same;

That there is no collusion between your Libellant and the said Libelee to obtain a divorce;

That being of sufficient ability and being able to labor and provide for her, said Libellee grossly, wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects to provide suitable maintenance for your Libellant;

That the said Libellee has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your said Libellant: so that her health has been impaired and her happiness wholly destroyed;

That one child has been born to them during their said marriage, now living, viz.: Bernice Cash, aged one year.

Wherefore, your Libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and the said Libellee may be decreed; and that the care and custody of their minor child, Bernice Cash, may be given to said Libellant;

Also that reasonable alimony may be decreed to your Libellant out of the estate of the said Libellee, or, in lieu thereof, that a specific sum may be paid to her by him;

And your Libellant further alleges that the residence of said Libellee is unknown to your Libellant and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Dated at Norway, Me., this third day of November, A. D. 1928.

(Signed) NELLIE MAY CASH, Libellant.

4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences, in order that important things may be accomplished.

5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading.

6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

She had been ill only a day or two and was rushed to the hospital Tuesday afternoon in Dr. S. S. Greenleaf's ambulance. Her case had not been completely diagnosed but she had been troubled some in the past with sugar diabetis. She was a very beautiful and intelligent child about eight years of age. CHEAPNESS NOT PROFITABLE

Cheapness causes many a failure in business. Candles will light a store, but they won't atract crowds. Trying to make money by cutting expenses and reducing service and attractiveness to a minimum, instead of spending money to attract money, usually means just keeping one's head above water in business. The merchant who shows old and shopworn merchandise with the idea of saving a few dollars will drive away customers and go broke. The theatre manager who books old and unwanted attractions will suffer the same experience. The restaurant keeper who serves mediocre food in a slipshod manner must sooner or later close his doors. The public will go distance for good merchandise, attractively displayed. Amusement lovers will wait in line at the box office for a good attraction. Those who patronize restaurants will go out of their way to be sure of well-cooked food, properly served. All successful business must spend money in order to make money.

No bar to scrape,
Nothing to do.

You listen to the soothing purr of the motor and pay the bills.
Do you know what it is?
Ben Hosmer of Norway can tell.

Editor Walter's hits:
"Dr. Butler is entirely right in commending the unarmed border between the United States and Canada to the nations of Europe as an example. Aside from a ceaseless rum war, incessant struggles with smugglers and an occasional battle to prevent the illegal entry of aliens, the border is as peaceful as a graveyard at midnight."

Once was, a man or woman could confide confidentially in his physician without the whole case being broadcast, but oft times the consultants' next door neighbor learns the facts before he or she returns from the consultation. Physicians say it is unethical to advertise, but it seems far more ethical to advertise and say "All Consultations Confidential and lived up to" than to betray the trust of the patient.

Important correction, taken from an exchange: "The baby daughter of Mrs. Edwin Perham weighed nine pounds instead of five pounds as before stated."

Read the Intelligenc Column. Lot of new stuff for sale. Tom Cod for bait can be found at Faneuf's lunch room; A. M. Daniels of Paris Hill will sell or swap a double harness and there are other chances to start something. Go to it.

Paul L. Allen came in Friday afternoon. He told us he had lost his skiis and didn't have any idea whether they were stolen or whether he left them somewhere. They were the Tubbs' make and light in color.

A big lie but heard on the street: "I could not sleep. Then an old-fashioned woman told me to sleep on a pillow stuffed with hops. And it works. I sleep well now."

Walter L. Sanborn: "Having chased the demon rum beyond the boundaries of the United States, fresh impetus is given the idea of banishing tobacco from the diet of the chewers and battening down the chimneys of the smokers. Naturally this new onslaught against the vegetable sin, or sinful vegetable, originates in Kansas."

Professor Charles K. Cummings: "Do you want to live forever on this earth? In ancient times one Ahasueras was given eternal life on this earth as punishmet for his misdeeds. He said it was the worst penalty that could haave been pronounced. I don't know whether or not he is still alive. I havn't heard anything about him for several years. Ask Bob Seavey, he may know."

Charles Sargeant: "If a man is inclined to worry he doesn't need to have anything to worry about. Also life is full of "don'ts" from the cradle to the grave, and all of us have the liberty to kick about not having liberty."

A mouse that built a nest in the head of Mrs. Odell C. Rich's sewing machine was like the man in the parable who used sand for the foundation of his house. One day when sewing went on the program, mother mouse was the victim of her folly and plugged the gears with her mortal remains. Roy White, who repairs sewing outfits, found the evidence of tragedy, and incidentally sold Odell one of the new style electric machines, self starting and mouse proof.

Outside comment: "If there is any pull in advertising, Norway should have a bumper Christmas business. For a town of its size, Norway is in the front row with the best of 'em."

Literary talk at a classy bridge game in one of the first social families, accurately reported by one who was there.
"I notice you have Upton Sinclair's new book, 'Boston,' standing up between book ends at your house. I am surprised. He is a rank socialist, and real people do not read his books."
"Oh, I have not read it," replied the hostess, scanning her cards. "I just bought it because it was in two volumes and they were bound in a shade of green that exactly matched my living room."
"Have you read Anne Parrish's new book?" "No, have you?" "No, but I'm just dying to: I heard the heroine is just too selfish for words, but she always gets her own way, and all the men fall for her as they always do for a woman of that type. She is vain, frivolous and everything men say they despise, and—"
"Well, what is this—a bridge game or a meeting of the literary club? It's your bid; please go on with the game."

Tax collector H. E. Day of Locke's Mills was in town, Wednesday. He is closing his annual vacation and returns to work in the Spool Mill, next week. He caught the usual amount of fur-bearing animals and turned them into a good bunch of money. He sold the catch to his brother who buys fur for Hunnewell of Lewiston.

Calvin Cummings of Albany, was a caller Tuesday. He was in town to attend the funeral of a relative, Mrs. Manetta Thomas, held at Spiller's Funeral Home. He reported everything quiet in Albany and roads treacherous for auto drivers.

Mrs. Lottie Adams, South Paris, wants a place to do housework and has an Intelligence ad for a position. Read the 'ads in that column.

George F. Hill of the Norway Buick Company places an ad in this issue, offering a reward of $25. for information leading to the conviction of the persons who broke into the automobile building at the Fair Grounds, last Friday evening.

Del Pennock, the mail transfer man, says: "Bum winter for my business. It's wheels and runners to South Paris, then sometimes neither. To guess the hook-up for a trip is a gamble, as the weather and traveling changes without official notice."

There is but little frost in the ground. We are told that a grave dug recently in Rustfield cemetery required only a spade. Often at this season, grave digging is out of the question because of frozen ground, sometimes to the depth of eight or ten inches.

Another Wandering Jew plant has been found bearing magenta flowers. Miss Dora McLucas and her sister, Mrs. Lillian Jewell have one that recently produced one blossom. We are told this is a rare occurance for many who have kept plants for years and have yet to find them in bloom.

N. A. Cummings, known by many as the mayor of Paris Hill, called Wednesday forenoon to renew his subscription for another year. Newt told about sliding down to South Paris Tuesday for auto chains make good sled runners on the ice. Wednesday with bare tires he made the trip in a more genteel manner, without the thrill.

O. K. Clifford, South Paris placed an ad Wednesday for the sale of low price auto chains. "No need of sending to a mail order house when they see my prices and goods" was O. K's comment.

Dr. Staples: "No, Ennice, Boulder Dam is not an expletive."

Walter Sanborn, Lansdale, Pa. says:—
Don Seitz declares the Stock Market "has been held up by the tail by the banks." A polcat can be safely handled in the same manner it is said, if one has the courage."

NEW DEFINITION FOR FLAPPERS

A new description of the flapper includes the specifications "red hot lips and air cooled knees." We can't testify to the first, but with wintry winds blowing, and short dresses and sheer silk stockings still the vogue, there is little doubt about the latter.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH

Had a heavy mail today.
Some letters were remonstrances.
One of them was a plea for more honesty in newspapers.
But the lady who made that plea forgets that seven years ago she was highly indignant because we told the truth about an entertainment she gave.
We said, about the entertainment: that the talent was rotten, that the attendance was very light and that the Good Cause back of the entertainment was silly.
Brothers and sisters, please don't ask newspapers to tell the truth in all instances.
Please consider how many of you would have to leave town if we were to print the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.—Exchange.
